The Derbyshire Historic Buildings Trust

Established in 1974, the trust has been responsible for the rescue of many historic buildings throughout Derbyshire. Using their skills and knowledge members of the Trust identify neglected and abandoned historic buildings and then work to bring them back into sustainable new use.

The Trust is a non-profit organisation and a registered charity which is passionate about the heritage of Derbyshire and will work with its own in-house and external professionals to provide help and advice to other groups and individuals who share a passion for historic buildings.

You can find us on the internet at derbyshirehistoricbuildingstrust.org.uk.

“ It has been most truly said at our meetings that these old buildings do not belong to us only; that they have belonged to our forefathers, and they will belong to our descendants unless we play them false. They are not in any sense our property, to do as we like with. We are only trustees for those that come after us. So I say nothing but absolute necessity can excuse the destruction of these buildings; and I say, further, that such a necessity has never yet existed in our time. ”

– William Morris (1834 – 1896)

William Morris was an English textile designer, poet, novelist, translator, and activist. Associated with the British Arts and Crafts Movement
